Wendy Mariner posted:

Uncle Butch has been a permanent fixture in most of his nieces and nephews lives , since we were all young, and he didn't have any children of his own , he treated us like his kids at times. I remember many days and nights as a kid sitting on the front porch, listening to his child hood stories or hanging out in the back yard shooting bottles and cans with BB guns . He had an weird sense of humor and sometimes get me a little frustrated, cause he thought he was right no matter what. I'm going to miss him. I'm glad he's not in any more pain and I know he is happy to see grandma and grandpa,mom and his baby sister and brother. RIH Uncle Butch, and don't be arguing with God , Lol.
