Early this morning as I woke - I was thinking of Larry Webb and that I miss him on this earth. I then just now opened this up and am watching as my tears have busted. Yes, I miss someone I loved as a brother in life on this earth from long time ago. Since kindergarden, living around the block, playing together, walking to school together, his mother cutting my hair, but then as life does our ships began drifting away on that sea in High School. ----- Ships on the sea passing through and how can one forget someone you knew on this earth of whom you loved in your heart on this earth. Our ships passed and became part of drifting in the wind and having to say 'Goodbye Beloved Friend, Goodbye'... I am blessed and thankful our ships passed to know one another a long time ago. I will always LOVE YOU Larry in my heart. You were a brother in my heart... I miss you. Jane Schweizer Fairchild 09/18/2023 3:15 pm

My heart is sad - seeing a beloved lifetime neighborhood friend pass away. I loved Larry as a brother held in my own heart. We had been neighborhood friends from Kindergarten through 12th Grade (High School); Larry was so sweet; kind and gentle. I am thankful that Larry and I were able to become reacquainted through the years. As we would meet one another with his beloved Joyce (wife) and Mark (my husband) alongside of me when would come to visit the Bloomington area from Albuquerque, New Mexico.-I have been so blessed in my life having friends as Larry.My heart is sad.Goodbye precious friend of life. Goodbye.-

HOW can one say goodbye to someone your heart has loved your entire life on this earth. Oh Larry, you were that of a brother to my heart. -Remembering those days growing up together on West Side Bloomington. From Kindergarten through 12th grade - and we still remained friends all those years. When Mark and I would visit 'home' in Bloomington as we resided in Albuquerque, New Mexico - we purposed to find a way to get together to meet - laugh, joke, and embrace.-even having the honor to meet your wife, Joyce those years. Thank you for being a friend to my heart. I will miss you., -I will miss you my friend.
